Case No. CV415-226

ORDER

On September 11, 2015, pro se plaintiff Daisy Mobley filed a "Proposed Continuance of Above Civil Action." Doc. 13. It's not entirely clear what she wants, but out of an abundance of caution the Court construes the filing as a motion for extension of time to respond to defendants' motion to dismiss (doc. 4) (filed September 3, 2015).

Mobley states that an "[e]xtension [d]eadline of September 4, 2015" has now been met (no such deadline ever existed), and thus that "it is time to move forward with above Civil Action." Doc. 13 at 1. "With the hopeful approval of the appointed, Judge William T. Moore Jr.,” she then reveals her “intent to continue fourth [sic] still stand, as findings, and summary of this case is forth coming within a week.” Id.

Construing that “hopeful approval” and “intent to continue” as a request for a September 18, 2015 response deadline (one week from the day Mobley filed her proposed continuance), the Court DENIES AS MOOT her construed motion since the original September 21, 2015 deadline exceeds the requested extension.

SO ORDERED, this 18th day of September, 2015.
